Soak up paradise under a beach umbrella

Visitor numbers are limited so you'll experience this island haven with a select few.

Live entertainment homeward bound.

Low Isles is an hour's exhilarating sail in tropical breezes from Port Douglas.

Wavedancer, a beautiful 30 metre catamaran, combines the excitement of sailing with first class comfort and style.

With small visitor numbers, a wonderful tropical island experience awaits...

Relax in Wavedancer's spacious air-conditioned lounge or soak up the sun and sea air under the sails. Our friendly crew will guide your day... Join the marine biologist to explore the island and a guided snorkel tour, or if you prefer, just relax on the beach under an umbrella!

A day at Low Isles with Wavedancer is a naturally inspiring eco-friendly experience.

Picture perfect and tranquil, Low Isles is home for a diverse habitat of marine and bird life, including a bountiful population of green sea turtles.

History and Heritage

- Quicksilver has been travelling to Low Isles since 1979 and we have always known it is a special island. Low Isles and its historic lighthouse are both Commonwealth Heritage listed in recognition of their place in Australia's cultural and Indigenous heritage.
- Aboriginal people know these islands as Wungkun. It is sea country and an important cultural site for the KuKu Yalanji and Yiragandi people.
- Charted by Captain James Cook in 1770, these cays were the site of the first extensive scientific study of a coral reef anywhere in the world in 1928.
- The landmark lighthouse has greeted guests since 1878. Our marine biologists will share this fascinating history with you during the guided island Heritage walk.
